Bessie Coleman Biography

In 1921, a woman by the name of Bessie Coleman became the ~~to~~ first black woman to gain her pilots license. She beat racial and gender discrimination and became famous worldwide.

Bessie Coleman was born on the 26th of January 1892 in Atlanta, Texas. Her parents were called Susan and George Coleman. They worked as sharecroppers but during harvest would to also do the job of a cotton picker to gain extra money.
19/9/24 Bessie had twelve siblings meaning her parents had thirteen children. During the harvest.

Despite the fact that African American people could not go to school, Bessie persevered and made it into school. Sadly, before she was four years old, her dad ~~her dad~~ left to find better options in Oklahoma. On top of that her mom could not read or write, making lots of things very hard. Bessie still managed to finish all eight grades. Then, Bessie saved up money for four years ~~th~~ then went to college.

After college, school Bessie went to university. The university she went to was Langston University in Oklahoma she stayed there for a while until she had no more money then went to Chicago because her brothers were also there. In Chicago she worked as a manicurist as a part time job earning money. Bessie started reading World War One books, which triggered her inspiration for ~~A~~ aviation.

~~20/9/24~~
20/9/24 After saving for a while, Bessie decided to try to get into an aviation school. Again and again she failed, but then one day when Bessie went to a restaurant, her friend, Robert Abbott, told her to go to France. Soon, Bessie could speak French so she could now go to France. After she went to France, she got into an aviation school and after seven hard months of training she got her license. She became the first African American woman to get her pilots license. She got her well earned license on June 1921.

After a few months, she started to train ~~for~~ to be a stunt pilot in Germany 1922. Later, she got her training completed and could ~~preform~~ perform in front of massive crowds. Bessie refused to perform in a crowd of people that did not allow black people. Bessie was amazing getting massive crowds and even got the nickname 'queen Bessie' She proved everyone wrong in the USA telling the message 'always follow your dreams.'

On the 30th April 1926 in Jacksonville, Florida, Bessie's plane had a loose screw causing her and her plane plummeting towards the ground from 3500 ft. She will always be remembered as the first African American Aviator. female

I have shown I have progress by using relative clauses

AA LO I Wow! A detailed, informative biography. Well done Kayvan. KK